

At their discretion, supervisors may allow staff, faculty, physicians, students, or volunteers to dress in a more casual fashion than is normally required within the department for specific occasional department-sanctioned events. On these occasions, these individuals are still expected to present a neat appearance consistent with the guidelines of this policy.

Individuals who are returning to the hospitals and clinics as on call for emergency situations, working outside of assigned hospital duties in a non-patient care setting, or en route to or from their worksite or changing area may dress in a more relaxed fashion.

This policy should be administered with sensitivity and respect for each individual's medical, religious, or ethnic need to diverge from the guidelines set forth. Therefore, exceptions to the policy for these reasons should be considered on a case-by-case basis and appropriate counsel sought from Hospital Human Resources.

Supervisors and managers who determine that a staff member, faculty, physician, student, or volunteer's personal appearance is inappropriate for the work environment are responsible for ensuring that person changes into appropriate work attire or alters his or her appearance appropriately before returning to the workplace. Repeated instances of inappropriate dress/personal appearance may result in discipline.

Guidelines for Supervisory Staff to Use

When requesting that staff, faculty, physicians, students, or volunteers change attire or alter their appearance in some manner, the supervisor should consider the following:

- Does appearance violate the UI Hospitals and Clinics Professional Appearance Policy, or guidelines set forth at the departmental level?
- Is there a significant risk of infection to the staff member or patients and visitors?
- Does the appearance pose a safety threat either personally or to others?
- Could the appearance be perceived as offensive (such as displaying racial slurs, swear words, symbols of death, or revealing body parts in a way that a reasonable person could perceive as inappropriate) to an individual or particular group of individuals?
- Are there religious or ethnic issues that need to be considered?
- Have there been complaints that the appearance is inappropriate or offensive in light of our desire to create a patient-centered and professional health care environment (see bullets above)?

V. Special Holiday Dress Guidelines:

Each year, a number of UI Health Care staff, faculty, physicians, students, and volunteers participate in Halloween (and to a limited extent other holiday) festivities by coming to work in costume. Many of our patients and others enjoy this practice. However, costumes must be appropriate to the work area and respectful to patients, fellow staff and the public.

In order to balance the desire for fun and the necessity of maintaining a respectful, safe work environment, the following costume guidelines have been adopted for staff members, volunteers, and students working and/or studying within UI Hospitals and Clinics. While this list should not be considered all encompassing, staff members, etc., should adhere to the following guidelines for apparel to be avoided when dressing for a holiday occasion.

Costume Apparel to Avoid:

- Masks or other full-face coverings that cause the wearer to be unrecognizable;
- Costumes depicting monsters, death, or controversial political figures;
- Items resembling guns or weapons;
- Costumes which promote harmful stereotypes, including those on the basis of race, creed (religion), color, national origin, age, sex, disability, sexual orientation, gender identity; *
- Costumes that are too revealing to be considered acceptable under normal work circumstances;
- Unclean or soiled clothing items not in keeping with hospital epidemiology guidelines.
